SEPTEMBER 2023

NOTES & NEWS

Sporty September

September marks the beginning of the NFL season, and the MLB season is nearing an exciting end. Two of the most popular sports in America, football and baseball share just one person in their halls of fame: Cal Hubbard, who was a linebacker for three NFL teams and spent 16 seasons as an MLB umpire.

Travel's Economic Effect

World Tourism Day is celebrated on Sept. 27. Read through these quick facts to learn how the travel, tourism and hospitality industry affects the world. (1) This industry contributed $9.6 trillion to the global gross domestic product in 2019. That revenue dropped in 2020, but it is coming back up: It reached $5.8 trillion in 2021. (2) Around 300 million people work in the travel and tourism industry worldwide. (3) The U.S., China and Germany contribute the most travel-related revenue to the global GDP.

Word for September: Rest

This month, we take time to "rest" and honor America's workforce on Labor Day. This "freedom from activity or labor," as described by Merriam-Webster's dictionary, also clocks in at an appropriate time when summer is winding down. Use the day to relax and recharge after a season of fun activities.

Fall Family Photos

Are you planning to send out holiday cards this year? September and October are good months to take family photos outdoors, since the weather is usually pleasant and the fall foliage in many parts of the country offers an appealing backdrop. Planning a photo session now also gives you plenty of time to select favorite images and get cards ordered before the holiday rush.

BULLETIN BOARD

Journal Prompt: Mindfulness

Mindfulness is all about being aware of what you're experiencing and feeling in a given moment without casting judgment upon yourself. Practicing mindfulness can relieve stress, anxiety and depression and can even help you sleep better. Answer this prompt: What is your dominant emotion right now? How is it affecting you physically?

Ooey-Goey and Delicious

With melty chocolate, a perfectly toasted marshmallow and graham cracker crunch, s'mores are a beloved autumn tradition. Get a taste of the season with these fun facts:

- The famous dessert has cycled through many names, starting with "Graham Cracker Sandwich" in the 1920s, followed by "Some More" in a 1927 Girl Scouts cookbook, and finally settling on "s'more" in the '30s.
- The residents of Grand Rapids, Mich., eat the most s'mores.
- The world's largest s'more, made in Vermont in 2019, was 342 pounds!
- The marsh mallow plant, otherwise known as Althaea officinalis, was used in early marshmallow recipes. The sap of the plant soothes sore throats, so the confection was used as medicine.
- Nowadays, gelatin is used to give marshmallows their squishy texture.
- 87% of Americans have eaten a s'more.
- The s'more's flavor is so adored that you can find it in many other products—such as Pop-Tarts, cereal, ice cream, beverages and trail mix, to name a few.
- When roasting marshmallows outdoors, use a metal skewer instead of wood to cook them faster. Turning the treat over the coals, rather than an open flame, results in a more uniform toast.
- S'mores are also a great indoor treat! Toast your marshmallow in an oven, microwave or air fryer. Make sure to keep an eye on the sticky stuff to prevent scorching.

Don't 'Weight' for Good Rest

Chances are you've heard someone talk about how much they love their weighted blanket. For many, these specialty blankets are the key to a good night's rest. But how do they work?

These blankets provide high-quality sleep through a technique called deep pressure stimulation, or DPS, which is used by occupational therapists to improve emotional and physical well-being. Weighted blankets give the impression of a hug or swaddle, and they increase serotonin, dopamine and oxytocin—all "feel-good" hormones—while lowering stress hormones.

Often, a weighted blanket has compartments full of materials that provide extra weight—such as beans, grains, sand, or beads made of plastic, glass or metal. A blanket made of a bulky yarn or fabric can also serve as a weighted blanket.

Ideally, a weighted blanket should be about 10% of your body weight.

By helping reduce movement while sleeping, weighted blankets can ease chronic pain, and their ability to slow heart rate and regulate breathing can lower anxiety. The blankets are often recommended for dementia, ADHD and autism, among other conditions.

Weighted blankets may not be the right choice for those with asthma, low blood pressure or type 2 diabetes. Talk with a health care provider to see if a weighted blanket would be beneficial for you.

Home Field Advantage

Some major sporting events are played at a neutral location to make sure no team has an upper hand. Statistics prove that home field advantage is real: In both the NFL and MLB, home games are won more than 50% of the time. In the NBA and MLS, the odds are even better—63% and 69%, respectively. So, what factors are in play?

Fans. At a home game, the stands are packed with adoring fans. Fan support goes a long way to enliven a team, but the crowd also enjoys distracting the visiting team with movements or shouts. These cheers may not affect seasoned players, but fans can still influence a referee's judgment. Many statistics show that officials tend to favor the home team when plays are questioned or penalties are called.

Travel. The visiting team sometimes has to travel quite a distance to appear at a game—even occasionally crossing time zones. This can take a toll on an athlete's mental and physical focus. Not only that, but visiting players often have to sleep in uncomfortable hotel rooms and may be away from the personal support of family, friends and fans.

Environment. Weather varies drastically across the U.S. and the world; a team that has trained to play in the heat may not perform as well in a snowy game, or vice versa. Additionally, changes in altitude can cause headaches or dizziness and can even affect the way a ball flies through the air.

Streaming the Smart Way

Streaming entertainment is easier and more extensive than ever: You can find movies and TV, music, podcasts, books and video games on popular platforms. But subscribing to all the latest and greatest services can take a large chunk out of your budget. Here are some tips to help you save:

Audit your entertainment. List all of the streaming platforms that you pay for, pick the one you use the least and cancel it.

Set a streaming schedule. There's no need to subscribe to everything all at once. Activate subscriptions to certain platforms when a show's new season releases or a hot album drops. Traveling soon? Download a premium app for podcasts or audiobooks.

Bundle up. Some platforms are offered in package deals or as add-ons to existing memberships. Also, your mobile phone carrier, credit cards or library may offer complimentary or discounted streaming services.

Look for free options. Many streaming platforms offer free trials to new subscribers. Set a reminder to cancel before you are billed, and use the app as much as you can during the trial period. Additionally, seek out platforms that are always free.

Keep the commercials. Save a few bucks by using ad-supported versions.

Watch for sales. Just like physical products, streaming services go on sale, especially at certain times of the year like Black Friday. You may have to commit to a whole year, but each month's payment will be significantly reduced.

Sweet Potato Taquitos

This twist on the classic PB&J is nutritious and filling.

Ingredients:

- 1 large sweet potato, peeled and cubed (about 1 cup)
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 cup nut butter
- 8 small flour tortillas
- 1 cup blueberries
- 1 cup raspberries
- Cooking spray

Directions:

Preheat oven to 400° F.

Toss sweet potato cubes in olive oil. Arrange potatoes in a single layer on a baking sheet and roast for 25 to 30 minutes, flipping halfway through.

Place cooked potatoes and nut butter in a medium bowl. Stir to combine.

Add a large spoonful or two of the potato mixture to each tortilla, followed by some blueberries and raspberries. Roll each tortilla tightly.

Spray a large skillet with cooking spray and heat on medium. Place rolled tortillas seam-side down in the skillet and spray more oil over the tops—keep spray contained to inside the pan. Cook taquitos until lightly browned, about 2 minutes per side.

Tips:

- Leave the skin on the sweet potatoes for added nutrition.
- Switch up the berries for a personalized flavor.
- Use an air fryer to save time: Roast the potatoes for 10 minutes and cook the assembled taquitos for 6 minutes!
